No Mexican Cannibals BYU Explorer Relates

"If we'd stayed in Mexico longer, the newspapers would have graduated us from university. Maybe I would have got a doctor's degree."

Larry D. Davis was talking. The 26-year-old archaeology student is back at BYU this week after two weeks exploring the rugged Rio Urique in the Barranca de Cobre (Ravine of Copper) country in northwestern Mexico.

Zoology professor Dr. Wilmer Tanner and graduate student James Dean of Salt Lake City also made the trip which received more than its share of national headlines last week because of the supposed perils the party was said to be in.

But Larry, along with expedition leader John L. Cross of Orem, insists things never really were as tough as the newspapers, radio and TV tried to make out.

"There was a lot of hoodoo about the whole thing," says Larry with a laugh. "In fact I think some people were actually disappointed when we boarded the train at Creel to come home."

Concern over the safety of the 14-man party began when Larry and James are reported to have "staggered out of the jungles after being lost for days."

"Sure we were hungry," Larry said, "our fourth day out from the main party (they had been sent to go ahead to a copper mine where food was cached) we dined on cookie crumbs, powdered milk, and a lifesaver."

They were both lying on a sandy beach after being forced to swim part of the way when they were spotted by two Mexican miners who had been looking for them.

"They were the homeliest guys I had ever seen, but boy were we glad to see them."

After getting some real food in their stomachs, and catching a short nap, Larry started back for the main party with food and supplies. James, meanwhile, decided to head for the nearest hospital, saying he was too sick to make the return trip.

When James finally got to Chihuahua the local press really started to blow up the adventure, reporting among other tales that the party had perished, or was starving to death.

U. S. Army and Air Force helicopters, cargo planes and para-medics parachutists were even called upon to join in a search which never materialized.

One newspaper went so far as to relate an exciting story of a battle with hostile Indians who finally forced the Americans into a cave, killed and ate them.

To which Larry says that if he were ever going to be eaten by anyone he would prefer the Mexican Tarahumara Indians who assisted him to bring supplies back to the main party.

"They're the friendliest guys in the world," he says.

"They're poor and dirty—but tremendous. And they climb like cats."

Next to the Indians, and the group he traveled with, Larry says the greatest thing about the trip was the fantastic scenery in the canyon which is twice as deep as Grand Canyon in spots.

According to John Cross, Jr., who along with Larry has done much "white water" exploring, portions of the Barranca de Cobre have never been explored at all.

Larry says the rugged land is beautiful, with orchids by the hundreds, and many other forms of vegetation. "All the area lacks is wildlife."

"It's worth every bit of a guy's time," says Larry who forgot to bring an orchid back for his girl friend.

He plans to make the trip again next year.

Right now his main concern is catching up on the school work he has missed. He doesn't think all the deadlines he got are going to impress any of the instructors in his sophomore classes, even if some of the newspapers did say he was a BYU professor.

From Motorbike to Tragedy

It was a crisp fall day, as two friends straddled a motorbike and rode toward Provo Canyon. The occasion was a joyous one—a last day of association together before the parting of ways because of an important mission call. DEATH rode there too. Unconcerned with the people the young missionary would teach or the work the young student of engineering would do, death took its toll.

The loss was great, not only to the family and friends but to the lives which would have been bettered by these young men.

Motor bikes have become increasingly popular in past months, even to the extent that some cities have discussed passing laws which would prohibit the use of motorbikes on city streets. The vehicles are easily rented not too difficult to learn to handle, but are overestimated as to power and danger. Bikes are light and easy for an inexperienced driver to lose control of. Also the rider is fairly unprotected and therefore easily thrown to the pavement should an accident occur.

Certainly motorbikes provide economic transportation, and those people who intend should exercise all precautions. But the casual rider who rents one for the first time should be warned. Take a second thought before climbing on a machine that could carry one to a fatal intersection, curve or highway.

Quit Chattering on the Stairway

"Quiet Please, This is a Study Area." So pleads small signs on the doors of the Clark Library. But we are appalled at how freely the pleases are flaunted. Often the library becomes nothing more than a social center of "hustling" dates and giggling over past ones.

Soon we will have the Y Center for such socializing, but what will happen until that time comes? Is there to be a place on campus dedicated to the cause of concentration and learning or is the library to become a seething mess of chatter?

Some high schools require their librarians to patrol the study tables and forcibly keep the students silent. Surely the same could be done for the officials of our library to be asked to babysit. We as students must accept the responsibility to respect the library as a place for the quest of knowledge. To do this silence must reign. Each of us must commit ourselves to refrain from talking.

Some of the greatest offenders are students leaving and entering the classroom or the library building. It is easy to forget it is in the library rather than in a regular academic building. However, for a student studying for a test next hour or a graduate student pouring over a newly discovered pithos, the distraction is unfortunate.

Another problem is the congestion in center stairwell during the class change 9 and 10 a.m. One student said it took from ten to fifteen minutes to get from the fifth level to the fifth level during these twelve minutes. There are ways to solve this problem. First, students could refrain from stopping to converse on the stairs, and, secondly, some students could use stairwells at both ends of the building, of these would relieve congestion.

Feature Editor Hoards Souvenirs

by Nancy Stephenson
University Feature Writer
If anyone should find themselves stuck with one very worn out stick, she may be the one lost by Universe Feature Editor Ardean Toler.

"I keep practically everything I lay my hands on," Miss Toler admitted with a smile. The stick was used as her supporting cane for the Timpanogos Hike this summer.

I MUST HAVE lost it during my move into the dorm," said Miss Toler who mourns its loss because of its obvious sentimental value. She had said the rock from the top of the mountain.

Not everyone is able to appreciate the value of items Miss Toler saves, so she sometimes lacks cooperation from those around her. For instance, last year she was saving a pressed daffodil and finding no better place, stuck it under her dresser between two sheets of paper.

She often takes time to clean them up and she rather overdid her job "I had to go digging through the trash can after it," Miss Toler said.

A JOURNALISM MAJOR Miss Toler is finishing work on the University's journalism classes for her most enjoyable school activities. With true reporter's curiosity she loves to ask questions and dig into the pasts of people "People just fascinate me," Miss Toler said, "even fascinate me."

"I think it amazes me how people work," Miss Toler said. "I love to talk to people and find out what makes them do the things they do."

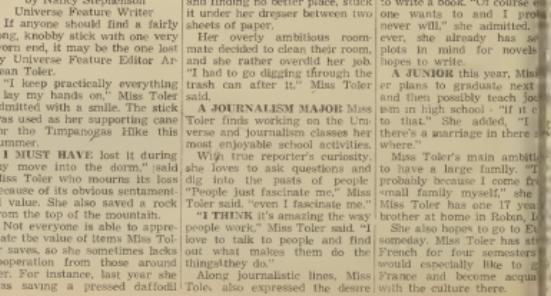

Along journalistic lines, Miss Toler also expressed the desire to write a book. "Of course one wants to and I probably will," she admitted, "ever, she already has several ideas and is looking for novels to write."

A JUNIOR this year, Miss Toler plans to graduate next year and then possibly teach journalism in high school. "If it can't be that," she added, "there's a marriage in there."

Miss Toler's main ambition is to have a large family. "I probably because I come from a small family myself," she said. Miss Toler has one 17 year old brother, Bert, who is in college.

She also hopes to go to France someday. Miss Toler has studied French for four semesters and would especially like to go to France and become acquainted with the culture there.

Criminal Action Faces Cancer Drug Backers

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — The controversial "Cancer Drug" Krebsenblen flunked its final federal scientific examination Tuesday, failing to meet all of the three greatest criminal charges.

Dr. Kenneth Endicott, Director of the National Cancer Institute, told a news conference that a committee of 28 physicians had decided unanimously that the drug did not meet specifications as an anti-cancer drug and strongly recommended that no clinical trial be undertaken."

Endicott's report, based on a study of medical records of 504 cancer patients, has been presented with Krebsenblen drew a mixed reply from Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, co-sponsor of Krebsenblen.

"I will continue to press for an impartial scientific test," Ivy said. "I am not giving up the Krebsenblen theory — that there is an anti-cancer substance in normal cells and tissues."

Unlucky Spy Case Yields Contacts Embassy Group

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — Jack Daniels, the American who committed suicide to avoid losing his peddled secrets to Russians, had one and probably two "contacts" at the Soviet embassy, it was learned Tuesday.

OTH OF THE Soviet officials had claimed immunity from prosecution because they sent them. However, both were sent to Russia shortly after Daniels committed suicide in his Embassy by carbon monoxide last "Der Alte" — the old one — thanked the German people for their help. Then he returned to the Parliamentary seat he left in 1950 to become Chancellor and restore Germany to a world power second only to the United States as a trading nation.

IT WAS JUST three months short of his 88th birthday but the old man still had the energy of a young man. When he returned to the Parliament seat he left in 1950 to become Chancellor and restore Germany to a world power second only to the United States as a trading nation.

He stood ramrod stiff in the square chamber of the Bundestag (Lower House) resting his hand on a tall pillar for 35 minutes while Speaker Eugen Gerstenmaier read a eulogy.

When he told Parliament promptly: "We Germans can again walk with our heads up." He said the greatest development of his administration was the recovery of friends in the world, noting when he came to power in 1949 his name was a curse; today the German name again rings true."

ADENAUER warned his successors against trying to make a separate deal with the Soviet Union in hopes of reuniting West Germany with Communist East Germany.

Yoshida Retires

TOKYO, (UPI) — Shigeru Yoshida, 85-year-old Japanese statesman who teamed with Gen. Douglas MacArthur to rebuild Japan from the wreckage of World War II, announced today he is giving up his seat in the Diet (Parliament).

Westerners often call Yoshida, who served as Prime Minister during most of the period from 1945 to 1954, the "Japanese Churchill." With his sharp tongue, his taste for good living, his love of cigars and his stocky figure, Yoshida invited the comparison.

Tribesmen Display Skills on Horses In Desert Setting

MARRAKECH, MOROCCO — A hardriding Berber tribe held a hell-for-leather celebration Tuesday and the riderless animal dashed toward Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy but pulled up a few yards short.

SHE DID NOT move or flinch. A secret serviceman jumped in front of Mrs. Kennedy to protect her.

Mrs. Kennedy and her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, sat in a desert tent to watch the shooting, shouting and hard riding Berber tribesmen perform at a spectacle observing the 40th anniversary of the birth of Crown Prince Sidi Mohamed.

73rd Birthday . . .

Republicans Give Party For General Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — Republicans threw a birthday party for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday night and looked back wistfully to the land-slide victories that put him in the White House for eight years.

THE EX-PRESIDENT and his wife, Mamie, were the guests of honor at a $75-a-plate fundraising dinner celebrating Eisenhower's 73rd birthday, which was officially observed Monday.

Republican National Chairman William Miller set the note with a speech depicting President Kennedy as a weak and divided Chief Executive alongside Eisenhower.

THROUGHOUT Miller's speech were such lines as: "And, Gen. Ike, we sure wish you were back running the show."

The dinner was sponsored by the Republican National Committee, the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, the District of Columbia GOP organization and the Capitol Hill Club, a private Republican organization.

WITH SEN. JUGO Scott of Georgia as master of ceremonies, the program featured songs by Ethel Merman, films of Eisenhower's life, the cutting of a birthday cake from a recipe of Mrs. Eisenhower, and the unveiling of a portrait. The picture of Eisenhower was painted by Bjorn Eggel for the Capitol Hill Club.

Miller said the Republicans can debate issues and candidates as they head into the 1964 Presidential campaign but that they could agree unanimously that they liked Ike and Mamie.

Finnish Group Visits Admires Daily Universe

"I am amazed at a newspaper that comes out everyday completely published by students," said Kalervo Wallman, a journalist from Finland.

Mr. Wallman was one of a group of Finnish members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to visit BYU Monday.

THE GROUP was privately sponsored with the purpose of seeing the United States and especially Utah. The group was able to go through the Logan and Salt Lake Temples.

Several of the group received their paternal blessings in Sweden before coming to America. They were able to receive them in Finland. There are no Stakes there and, consequently, no patriarchs.

Mr. Hobbs Takes A Vacation Tells Story of Zany Holiday

Jim Favorites presents in black-and-white color a hearty comedy, "Mr. Hobbs Takes A Vacation," the most wonderful of about "Mr. Hobbs Takes A Vacation" (aside from Mr. Hobbs himself) is that so much of it is so true that viewers will recognize either themselves or someone close in any of these comic, but truly real situations.

With the fun flavor of "P's Of The Bride" (this story also by Edward Streeter), this film and typical tale tells of Mr. Stewart's tribulations with entitled, rickety-seaside house; and his teenage daughter, Fabian, takes the button her first set of braces and gains the attention of his Michael Burns.

Stewart's wife O'Hara turns her vacation into a family get-together, inviting children, granddaughters, son-in-laws and cook.

Texas Longhorns Chosen Top Grid Team in Nation

NEW YORK. (UPI)—Texas' Longhorns bullied their way into first place and upsets completely jumbled the major college football's top 10 in the weekly rating of the United Press International Board of Coaches.

NOT A SINGLE MEMBER of the top 10 remained in the same position as last week and only three of the elite emerged with unbeaten-until records.

Wisconsin jumped to second place from fifth, idle Pittsburgh moved up a notch to third, Ohio State slipped from fourth to fourth despite a tie with Oklahoma, No. 1 last week before its 28-7 licking by the Longhorns, fell to fifth.

THREE SOUTHEASTERN Conference teams, Georgia Tech, Mississippi and Alabama in order filled the sixth through eighth spots.

Illinois, a newcomer to the top 10 along with Ole Miss, tied Alabama for the eighth position and Northwestern, fourth Big Ten representative among the 10 best, ranked 10th. The Wildcats and Georgia Tech returned to the ranking 10 after a week's absence.

DEFENDING CHAMPION and twice-beaten Southern California, ninth last week, dropped completely out of the first 20 after its loss to Notre Dame.

Here are the ratings, with first-place votes and won-lost records in parentheses:

| TEAM | POINTS |
|------------------------|--------|
| 1. Texas (30) (44) | 344 |
| 2. Wisconsin (5) (34) | 304 |
| 3. Pittsburgh (30) | 215 |
| 4. Ohio State (24-1) | 148 |
| 5. Notre Dame (24-1) | 125 |
| 6. Georgia Tech (5-3) | 113 |
| 7. Mississippi (24-1) | 108 |
| 8. (The) Alabama (3-1) | 98 |
| 9. The Illinois (20-1) | 98 |

Cougars Begin Basketball Practice Open Season Dec. 6th Against UC

TUESDAY ON THE SMITH Fieldhouse playing floor will be reported to Tom Watt, BYU basketball coach to begin daily workouts in preparation for the season opener with U.C.L.A. December 6 in Los Angeles.

Just a month ago sports fans were confronted with the overlapping of major league baseball seasons and the beginning of basketball seasons. With basketball practice in session now several sideline quarterbacks will cut short their watch on the football practice field and hurry into the field from the College of Science house for the last hour of workouts. These quarterbacks must prepare briefs for reference when football season ends and they become 'box-seat' coaches.

NEW PERSONNEL won't be a real problem. There are only five. The remainder of the squad has been returned and last year's freshmen are the new. According to Coach Wattis this year may be "younger, faster and more aggressive" than the 1962-63 squad.

Roland Munson will again be assisting in the coaching duties. Munson is one of BYU's greatest basketball alumnus.

THE CENTER position great improvement over year. Fairchild has come to play center. His work indicates he is serious at while at Palomar Junior (Calif.) he averaged 22 per game.

Paul Wyatt is back and a good replacement taking over more height in the line. Wyatt may be tried at Dee Denzer, 6 foot 9 inch, has every intent learning the necessary elbowing tricks complimenting a good college center.

Almost half of the squad listed as forwards. Quinn Miller and Blumenthal are seniors and returning from the freshman team. John Fairchild, 67, Jon Reckous, 6-6, and George Routts 6-0, are expected to fill in where graduation and a mission call have taken a toll.

THEIR SIX GUARDS, seniors, which average just above six feet in height. Returns are the lone returning man from the previous two very familiar players. Jeff Condon and Dick Nemeth, both 6-6'63 fresh, are working for starting roles.

Paul Miller, from Pleasant Grove, is back and says his arm is completely healed. Paul lost most of last season because of a broken arm.

George Rekoutis, a transfer from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. He played there during the 1959-60.

BLUMENTHAL has grown inch and is now 6 foot 5 1/2 inches tall. He may be moved to in order to take advantage inside shooting ability strength on the boards.

The schedule lists 22 games the Far West Classic at Peoria beginning December 18. The Cougars will not go to the first time in many years.

In Thin Ice... With Bud Tolman

Harder Than It Looks

Yesterday afternoon I had the opportunity to go to the Smith Fieldhouse to participate in the basketball event day, and if the chance never comes up again I would be too sorry.

I took two photographs from the Universe with me to snap the local hoopers in various positions of pose and pose and I'm positive I at least doubled the normal and it would have taken the photographers to take their breath away.

I felt like I was on a somewhat alien field by trying to describe the pose in which I wanted each player photographed. However, the photographers calmly sorted out my sometimes confused suggestions and proceeded to set up posed action shots completely different and infinitely better... It isn't as easy as the Kodak company says it is.

While on the subject of basketball, it might be interesting to note that Brigham Young was among the top ten teams in the nation in total attendance.

The Cougars drew a total of 102,772 fans into the confines of the Smith Fieldhouse last season in addition to 80,428 on the road for a total attendance figure of 183,210.

Blue Devils Draw Most Fans...

The top team in the nation, attendance-wise, was the University of Maine Devils drew 274,108 fans at one game on the road, Oregon State and Cincinnati came close and third respectively.

One item that was overlooked in the weekend sports wrap-up was the results of the Utah-BYU bicycle race. Only one BYU student finished in the top four and that was Sherman Martin, who placed fourth. Utah claimed all of the top three positions in the challenge competition.

BYU did have the best turnout however, both in trants, seven, and support, where several hundred rode out to cheer them on their way. Best quote came from Utah team Captain Peter Locke. "From my point of view BYU had a great turnout. If the enthusiasm of the U of U was as good then it might hold claim as better school."

We Did Win Something...

This statement was made prior to the starting of a race and just a note to Mr. Locke, there was little enthusiasm at Utah. No one showed up at the finish line if it appeared no one actually cared if anyone won. It was perhaps a greater loss than our loss of the race itself.

I have a correction to make but I don't quite know whether to apologize to Floyd Millett or Eddie Kimball. Friday's column I stated Mr. Kimball coached BYU's initial victory over the University of Utah grid-ies. However, it has come to my attention that, although Mr. Kimball was Y coach from 1937 to 1948, Floyd Millet was engaged to coach for one year. Yes, you guessed it, 1942, the year the Cats upended the Ute applecart.

'Pokes Want Revenge...

Cougars Face Showdown in Laramie

Brigham Young University's football team comes up with the roughest showdown of the season Saturday when it meets the club that could be the fastest draw in the Rocky Mountain Southwest, Wyoming.

THE TREK to Laramie has not been easy one, and this particular trip will be even tougher by the fact that the game will be part of the Cowboys' homecoming celebration.

Wyoming's mowhiders stand 3-1 for the season, dropping only a close 21-25 decision to Kansas. BYU's record mark includes no conference defeats.

THE AFTERMATH of the Y's 3-15 loss to Utah finds the Cougars more determined than ever to scramble the standings again with an upset at Laramie. They jumited the WAC standings last week and now look out to turn the trick again this season.

There is really no cause to expect any kind of warm welcome.

in Memorial Stadium Saturday, in as much as the 'Pokes have been waiting nearly a year for their return to the scene.

LAST YEAR the Cougars knocked Coach Lloyd Eaton's club out of the championship with a 14-7 upset at Provo. The game, judged by many as the hardest hitting, best played conference game of the season, cost Wyoming the WAC title.

Consequently, the coming assignment isn't very inviting as far as the Cougars are concerned.

MONDAY FOUND the squad on the practice field, trying to iron out the wrinkles that have made this year's ride a bumpy one.

The Y's principle project seems to revolve around the passing game, both on offense and defense.

Prior to the Utah game, the Cougars were wrestling with problems in pass defense. Against the Redskins Saturday night they gave up only 29 yards on aerials, but the Utes scored their biggest gains on the ground.

SO ITS POSSIBLE Coach Hal Mitchell may want to overhaul the Cougar attack, or at least make some adjustments to get the air and ground attacks synchronized.

BYU Music Department Heir To Antique Dulcimer

A two hundred year old dulcimer was presented to the BYU Music Dept. by Shirley Hansen and Lotta Van Buren in honor of the grandchildren of pioneer musician Henry V. Smith.

A FORERUNNER of the piano, the dulcimer was originated in Iran before the birth of Christ. It is a stringed instrument instrument which is played by striking the metallic strings with sticks.

The dulcimer, which was made by J. Van Wagener, has remained in the Van Wagener and Smith families for over two hundred years. It was brought across the plains by the forebears of Mr. Smith and given to him by his mother.

The dulcimer, passed down to Henry Smith's grandchildren, was given to Burt Smith, who stipulated in his will that it will be placed in a museum.

The instrument will be housed in the Lotta Van Buren collection of musical instruments on lower campus. This collection of old instruments was presented to BYU in the fall of 1966. Mrs. Lotta Van Buren, Burt's widow, is a noted collector and restorer of instruments.

A special museum room has been created in the new Fine Arts Center.

Applications Of For Traffic Judge

Students who wish to apply for judges on the Salt Lake City Traffic Court should apply to the Student Administration according to Jerry Driscoll.

Interested persons should contact at least one student in BYU and carry a grade average of 3.0 or better, M. Scott said.

Student judges will be used for hearing and evaluating traffic problems which are brought before the Student Court.
